

► Trade Policy: Motivations and Consequences

سیاست های بازرگانی: دست آوردها و انگیزه ها

2-day Intensive Seminar with Prof. von Auer

کارگاه آموزشی تمام وقت 2 روزه

Course ID: SM-212

Every government influences the national economy in various ways. One important tool is the government's trade policy. Instruments such as import tariffs are intended to support the import-competing sectors of the economy. Similarly, export subsidies are intended to help the exporting section of the economy.

The course aims at providing a better understanding of the motivations behind certain trade policies and also the side effects of such policies.

Goals

Participants of the course should be able to develop a clearer understanding of the motivations and consequences associated with the standard trade policies enacted by governments. The course attempts to improve the participants'

- analytical economic competences
- awareness of political motivations.

Program Overview

- Why do nations trade?
- Basic analytical tools
- Instruments of trade policy
- Import tariffs
- Export subsidies and export taxes
- Other instruments of trade policy

Trainer

Since 2006, Prof. Dr. Ludwig von Auer is at Chemnitz University of Technology, Germany, where he has a professorship for Macroeconomics and International Economic Relations. His academic background includes a M.Sc. in Economics from the London School of Economics and a PhD from the University of Kiel, Germany. He has taught "International Economics" in various professional MBA programs. His fields of research comprise "international economic integration", "statistics and empirical analysis", "social security systems", and the "economics of altruism".

For further information please contact us.

The application forms can be found on page 85 et seq.